STAT

I have received your 26 June letter and have reviewed action taken by the Agency on your application.

Your resume was advertised throughout the Agency and each of those components engaged in activities for which you might immediately or ultimately qualify had an opportunity to consider your application. The simple fact is that for the past year we have been almost literally deluged with applications for employment from many exceedingly intelligent, well qualified and experienced applicants. Under such conditions it is only natural that managers would select what they consider to be the most qualified applicants for the few jobs which they have open. Unfortunately, there are others with a deeper background than yours for those positions requiring the qualifications you possess.

I regret very much that we were not successful in locating a suitable opening for you in the Agency. If you wish to reapply at some later date when, perhaps, our employment situation has changed, please do not hesitate.

Sincerely,

[s] Vernon A. Walters

Dear General Walters:

My name is

You met my father

STAT

My father is now a practicing attorney in California. One of his favorite pictures is that of he and General Eisenhower seated at a table with you

STAT

My father suggested that I write to you.

If I may, I would like to presume upon this old acquaintance in the hopes that you can help me. I will be graduating from college in June with a B.A. degree in Political Science. I hope to find a job dealing with political analysis, foreign affairs or something related to this. I would like information on what the C.I.A. is like, what it would require of an applicant for these types of positions, and what sort of programs it has. Most importantly, I would appreciate your personal comments on the Agency and any suggestions you may be able to give me.

I realize that inquiries to the C.I.A. have increased in recent months and that you are very busy. Any information that you can give me will be greatly appreciated.

Yours Sincerely,
